

Living Your Passion

Contributed by AstroLenn
 Sunday, 24 August 2008
 Last Updated Saturday, 04 October 2008

In this world there must be an energy exchange made between two people in any interaction.

Without one the other is impossible. We all start out with a certain amount of energy in order to power our body and all of the other activities of the day. It takes a lot of energy to power our body and if we eat the right foods and exercise we can add to our energy reserves. Exercise makes our body be able to run on less fuel and the fuel that we take in is used up in running the body and not taking the extra step of storing it in parts of our body. Our body takes that energy both Universal and nutritional and powers both our internal body, and our external body, which includes our creativity.

{quotes} When you work at a job that is your passion it is not work, and a person who is passionate about what he is working at is way more productive than one who is only there for the money!{/quotes}

In order to be employed at what you are passionate at doing, you need the power to create that passion. In my first issue I explained how energy is drained by many things for example control dramas, addictions, our past and our future. If you have a hundred units of universal energy and you need thirty just to power the body, which would be great, but you have to factor in your power leakages. It takes more energy to power your addictions, and there are more forms of addiction than just drugs. You can become addicted to sex, working out, TV shows, a person. Some people have a big energy drain to the past and various emotional traumas or to the future and that perfect life. Staying in the now is the most important thing you can do. It is by far the hardest thing to do. You need to be in the present to create your passion. his concept is so important for people to understand I will go into more depth. Let us say that you are allotted one hundred watts of universal energy to power your body everyday, add to that the energy you take in from eating and drinking which is say fifty watts. {quotes} Out of that allotment of one hundred and fifty watts you need thirty watts to power all your organs and bodily functions. {/quotes} That would leave one hundred and twenty watts to create your world, which is good enough. Only problem is there is a constant energy drain to addictions, if you smoke cigarettes at least ten watts goes to them, the same with any other addiction. The reason an addiction is so bad for you, isn't only because it is harming your body, it is because most people are constantly thinking about that addiction. If you smoke cigarettes your mind is constantly being directed to those smokes and when the next time you will have one and satisfy that craving. So a person who smokes both weed and tobacco drinks more than a beer a day in any one week and gambles or plays video games constantly or is thinking about someone all day is giving up a lot of energy. Now a lot of people who are addicted to drugs of any kind have a lot of energy trapped in the past, because they have an issue that made them become addicted to that drug in the first place. Every time you think about the past you give up some energy, which is power that you could have used to create your passion. There may be three or four time periods that has your energy trapped.

There are a lot of people who think nothing of downloading DVD's, MP3's and software programs off the net. {quotes} You may never pay a cent for downloading, but there is an energy exchange. Depending on how large the download is, this exchange can be enormous. {/quotes} This energy is taken right out of the energy you need to power your body. Some people with a lot of addictions run into trouble with not having enough energy and then you start losing cellular energy. This energy comes from your major organs, like the heart or liver or kidneys or pancreas.

A rich man always knows that he is rich and conducts himself in this way. When he creates his future he thinks that is perfect for him. He never creates a future where he is struggling through life, with not enough resources to feed, clothe or educate his children. On the other hand a poor man dreams all about being rich and always prays that he wins big, so they can quit struggling to survive. This man is always saying to himself that someday he will be able to open his own shop, and quit working at minimum wage.

{quotes} Creating is all about believing, you have to believe that you are worthy of receiving that new job before you will ever be employed in it. {/quotes} How many times have you heard about someone winning the lottery when they are living on skid row? I wouldn't say that it was impossible, just not very probable.

So when you have excess energy and something you are passionate at doing for a living you need to be able to create that job. First of all you need to create in your own mind what you would like to see manifest in your life, and then ignite this creation with the power of intention. Second you need to have the absolute belief that what you are manifesting will come into your life. This is crucial to the process as there are too many people who do the first two steps and when the universe has not responded quickly enough then they despair and say I never get what I want or some other negative phrase. The Universe just doesn't understand pessimism and will give what you want and since its nothing it comes to you immediately. That is really it as far as manifesting your passion. If you hold true to what you want it will come to you. A person who has a lot of power to create will have their intention come true a lot quicker than someone who is sometimes running a deficit. Never give up on your dreams.